

Panel Title: Online and Hybrid Teaching for the 21st Century

Kimberly Collins, Roger Chin and David Baker, California State University San Bernardino

Higher education is evolving. It is not completely clear what this evolution will lead to but this discussion will provide insight and best practices for teaching professional MPA students in online and hybrid formats. The MPA classes taught provide theory and practical application of knowledge to the students, focusing on metacognition and critical thinking skill sets. Conference attendees are welcome to bring their best practices for online and hybrid education in order to develop a lively conversation. It is believed that the sharing of techniques and lessons learned is critical at this juncture to educate and prepare the next generation of public servants.